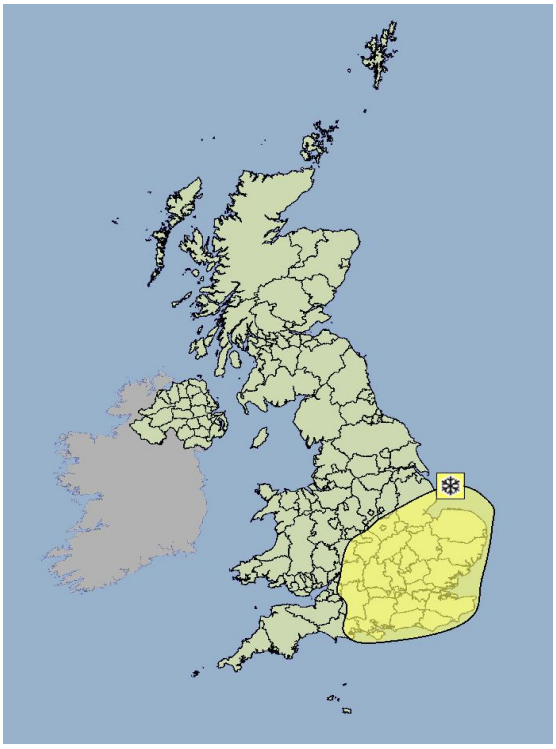
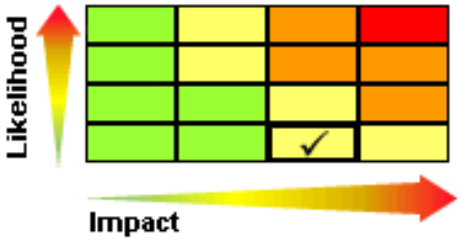
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
High pressure over Scandinavia will feed a very cold easterly airstream across the country during this weekend. As this air crosses the North Sea snow showers will form on Sunday, and could well merge into convergence lines producing 2-5 cms of snow in places. This is most likely near the Thames estuary and the Wash, and these snow showers could then spread westwards.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Snow

Valid from 00:05 on Sun, 18th Mar 2018 until 23:55 on Sun, 18th Mar 2018

Snow showers are likely throughout Sunday, and where these converge some snow may well accumulate and could then prove disruptive. There is a small chance of travel delays on roads with some stranded vehicles, along with delayed or cancelled rail and air travel. There is a small chance that power cuts will occur and services, such as mobile phone, may be affected.
